Quotes from the Festival Yesterday:

“If all you do is memorize dates, you're wasting time. If you don't know what the Declaration of Independence is and its relationship to the Constitution and why we have the Articles of Confederation, you're not an educated person, and you're not going to learn it as a 39-year-old on Wikipedia.” —Joel Klein

“If you show a poetry professor your shiny new multiple choice teaching technology, he will invite you to exit his office.” —Andrew Ng

“The ‘we’ in ‘we the people’ has constantly expanded to encompass people of diverse gender, of diverse race, of diverse sexual orientation. It's recognizing that treating people who are different than you this way is not right.”
—David Boies

“There is now, I think, a kind of stunning lack of imagination to understand the impact of the effects of sequestration. You know, on the domestic side it is real impact if you're not making new grants in NIH in terms of the future of biomedical research and the economic developments that come out of biomedical research. It makes a real difference in the military if you're idling fighter squadrons, and the planes may not be airworthy and the crews won't have time in the air to go into battle if they need to. These things aren't free.” —Jacob J. Lew
